Analysis:

Grievances

This case involves a single grievance by Remington. Remington asserts that Respondent violated its own policies and procedures in the hiring process for Supplementary Pay Assignments.

Jurisdiction:

The Department's role in reviewing grievances is defined under SDCL 3-18. That statute states in part:

If, after following the grievance procedure enacted by the governing body, the grievance remains unresolved . . . it may be appealed to the Department of Labor . . . The Department of Labor shall conduct an investigation and hearing and shall issue an order covering the points raised, which order is binding on the employees and the governmental agency.

SDCL 3-18-15.2.

Respondent's grievance procedure is outlined in Section IX of the Oelrichs Public School #23-3 Negotiated Agreement. It must be shown that Remington followed the procedures set forth in Section IX before the Department has jurisdiction in this matter.

The Negotiated Agreement (Agreement) establishes five steps in its grievance procedure. First, the aggrieved individual must meet informally with the person's supervisor within fifteen days after the individual knew or should have known of the condition from which the grievance arises. Days are defined as business days. (Oelrichs Public School #23-3 Negotiated Agreement, section 9.3-9.4A)

In this instance, the time, place, and extent of notice is in question. Respondent asserts that Remington should have known that he would need to apply for the coaching positions when he received the April 13 email. Remington claims he did not have any notice that he would not automatically be rehired for the position until June 3. When facing a Motion for Summary Judgment, we must always apply the facts in a light most favorable to Petitioner. Therefore, June 3 will be considered the date of notice. All further time limits as defined in the Agreement will be analyzed from a June 3 starting point.

The nature of the informal meeting is not defined by the Agreement. Remington asserts that soon after he received notice of the job advertisements, on either June 3 or 4, he contacted his direct supervisor, Principal Wendel. Principal Wendel does not confirm this conversation. However, again we will apply facts in light most favorable to petitioner and accept that the phone call occurred. Since Remington was out of town at the time and the Agreement does not define the expected nature of the informal meeting, the phone call to Principal Wendel will be considered to meet the requirement of Informal Meeting. (Oelrichs Public School #23-3 Negotiated Agreement, section, 9.4A)

The next steps in the Agreement's grievance procedures are defined as the "Formal Procedure." The first step of the Formal Procedure is to submit a Level 1 grievance. Respondent supplies a formal grievance form. However, the Formal Procedure does not specify that a specific form needs to be used. It merely states a signed copy of the grievance must be submitted in writing to the direct supervisor and the Superintendent. (Oelrichs Public School #23-3 Negotiated Agreement, section 9.3-9.4B- Level One)

Five days after a Level 1 decision, or 10 days after filing, if no decision has been rendered, the aggrieved individual may resubmit the grievance to the Superintendent. This is a Level 2 grievance. (Oelrichs Public School #23-3 Negotiated Agreement, section 9.3-9.4B- Level Two)

Remington asserts that the email sent on June 4th to the Principal and Superintendent was intended to set the grievance process in motion. Remington submitted a Level 2 grievance on July 24. The number of days between Level 1 and Level 2 is, therefore, well over the required 10 days. However, Remington did submit a Level 1 grievance on the provided grievance form on July 9. If we consider Remington's July 9 form as the Level 1 grievance, we then look to when the Level 1 grievance was denied which occurred on July 15. This means that Remington's Level 2 grievance needed to be submitted within five days of the Level 1 denial. That date would have been July 22. Remington did not submit his Level 2 grievance until July 24, two days after the time limit.

Whether we consider June 4 or July 9 as the date the Level 1 grievance was submitted, the result is the same. Remington's Level 2 grievance was not submitted within the time limit outlined by the Agreement. Remington has failed to comply with the grievance procedures and, the Department is without jurisdiction.

Order:

For the reasons stated above, the Department lacks jurisdiction in this matter and must grant the Respondent's Motion for Summary Judgment. This case is dismissed with prejudice. This letter shall constitute the Order in this matter.

Sincerely,
