Education & Training

A bachelor's degree in social work is the minimum education recommended for child, family and school social worker positions. However, many of these workers have a master's degree in social work. The master's degree generally takes an additional two years to complete beyond the typical four-year bachelor's degree. A registered apprenticeship is another option for preparing for this occupation. To learn more, visit StartTodaySD.com or contact your local Job Service office to get started.

Clinical social workers must be licensed in South Dakota. For more information, see the
