I recently attended the 2008 Chili/Oyster Feed in Pierre and would like to commend the SD Association of REALTORS, the SD Homebuilders Association and other groups who hosted this fine event. As usual, everyone involved in the event went the extra mile to provide a wonderful opportunity for the real estate community to connect with our legislators.

Speaking of legislators, I would encourage you all to log on to the 2008 Legislative Session homepage at www.legis.state.sd.us/sessions/2008.

The site is very user-friendly and even provides a bill subject index which neatly categorizes all of the proposed bills into major subject categories such as “Property” and “Planning and Zoning”.

As the legislative session enters into its last couple of weeks, it is important to stay informed regarding the proposed laws that may have an effect, either directly or indirectly, on the real estate profession.

I would also encourage you to sign up for the 2008 SDREC Spring Caravan. Registration information is on the front page of this newsletter. We are excited to have Marie Spodек returning to South Dakota to present a course on green building practices and Errors & Omissions insurance.

With winter soon coming to an end, I hope spring brings along renewed vitality for your real estate markets.

Sincerely,
Brian Jackson

The Commission has recently been involved with a task force to revise eight of the Commission’s prescribed forms. Drafts of these forms have been posted to the Commission’s website at www.state.sd.us/sdrec for your review. If the Commission receives a favorable response, the forms will be approved at the Commission’s March meeting. They will then be available on-line for your use.

I would like to express my thanks and appreciation to the members of the Forms Task Force. These individuals were from all over the state and represented your industry with utmost professionalism. It was indeed a pleasure working with them.

Licensees who failed to renew their licenses at the end of 2007 are posted in this newsletter. If you see an individual listed who you know is still engaging in the practice of real estate, please contact the Commission office. Brokers, please look at the licenses displayed in your offices to make sure they are current.

At its last meeting, the Commission authorized the staff to research on-line services, i.e. renewals, changes of association, etc. This will be an exciting project and the staff is anxious to bring the office into the 21st century. If any of you hold licenses in jurisdictions that have on-line services, please let us know the pros and cons you’ve encountered.

Responsible brokers, please review your office policies and procedures. If you don’t have one, I suggest you get one. I continually receive calls from agents who want to associate with a different broker but don’t know what to do with their existing clients. All responsible brokers should have a written policy in place for what happens when an associate moves to another office.

We’ll soon be honoring the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Have you ever thought about George Washington campaigning for president? He would have been the only presidential candidate who couldn’t blame the previous administration for his troubles!

HUD, EPA and U.S. Attorney in Minnesota Announce Legal Settlement with Minneapolis and St. Paul Landlords

Agreement requires 179 units to become “lead-safe” News release from the HUD

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and the U.S. Attorney’s Office for the District of Minnesota announced a legal settlement with nine Minneapolis-St. Paul area property owners and one property management company.

The government alleges these landlords failed to inform tenants that their homes might contain potentially dangerous levels of lead in violation of the federal disclosure rules.

This settlement will result in the complete elimination of all lead-based paint hazards in 179 apartments in the Minneapolis and St. Paul region, with those units containing children six years of age or under or pregnant women being completed first. Two properties, containing 113 units, tested under this settlement were found to be free of any lead-based paint.

In addition to paying substantial funds to make these rental units lead-safe, the landlords will pay a civil fine of $7,500 for violating the federal disclosure law and will spend another $50,000 working on a Child Health Improvement Project (CHIP) to replace windows in at least 35 low- and very-low income, owner-occupied homes with children under age six in the Thomasdale, Rice Street and Lower East Side of St. Paul. The landlords will also notify tenants of lead hazards immediately and comply with the Lead Disclosure Rule in the future.

“This agreement is another important step toward eliminating childhood lead poisoning by reminding all landlords that they have a responsibility to disclose possible lead hazards to their tenants,” said HUD Deputy Secretary Roy A. Bernardi.

“EPA has the ambitious goal of eliminating childhood lead poisoning by 2010,” said EPA Region 5 Administrator Mary A. Gade.

Revised Forms Posted on SDREC Website

Drafts of the revised forms as recommended by the Forms Task Force have been posted on the SDREC website at www.state.sd.us/sdrec.

The new and revised forms include:

* Contingency Removal
* Counteroffer
* Exclusive Buyer Agency Agreement
* Listing Agreement
* Nonexclusive Buyer Agency Agreement
* Purchase Agreement
* Real Estate Relationship Disclosure

The Commission will review these forms for approval at the March 5 & 6 meeting in Pierre.

FTC Offers Tutorial for Businesses on Protecting Personal Information (used with permission from the FTC)

Protecting Personal Information: Five Steps for Business by Lesley Fair

What’s in your file cabinet right now? Tax records? Payroll information? And what’s on your computer system?

Financial data from your suppliers? Credit card numbers from your customers? To a busy marketer, those documents are an everyday part of doing business. But in the hands of an identity thief, they’re tools for draining bank accounts, opening bogus lines of credit, and going on the shopping spree of a lifetime — at the expense of your company, your employees, and the customers who trust you.

Sophisticated hack attacks make the headlines, but many security breaches could be prevented by commonsense measures that cost companies next to nothing. That’s why the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has published Protecting Personal Information: A Guide for Business, a plain-language handbook with practical tips on securing sensitive data. The specifics depend on the size of your company and the kind of information you have, but the basic principles remain the same. Whether you work for a multinational powerhouse with branches around the world or a start-up based in a home office, a sound information security plan is built on these five key practices:

Take stock. Know what personal information you have in your files and on your computer. Understand how personal information moves into, through, and out of your business and who has access — or could have access to it.

Scale down. Keep only what you need for your business. That old business practice of holding on to every scrap of paper is “so 20th century.” These days, if you don’t have a legitimate business reason to have sensitive information in your files or on your computer, don’t keep it.

Lock it. Protect the information you keep. Be cognizant of physical security, electronic security, employee training, and the practices of your contractors and affiliates.

Pitch it. Properly dispose of what you no longer need. Make sure papers containing personal information are shredded, burned, or pulverized so they can’t be reconstructed by an identity thief.

Plan ahead. Draft a plan to respond to security incidents. Designate a senior member of your team to create an action plan before a breach happens.

Get your copy of Protecting Personal Information: A Guide for Business at www.ftc.gov/infosecurity. While you’re there, download copies for your IT manager, your human resources department, your sales staff, and anyone else who comes in contact with customer or employee information.

Continuing Education Corner

By Karen Callahan, Education Director

During the last license renewal period, the SDREC office received many calls from licensees wondering if they should send copies of their education certificates with their license renewals.

The answer is generally, no. This task is now the responsibility of the course provider, both classroom and distance learning. The course provider has 10 days to submit this information to the SDREC office. Licensees should also be aware that for distance learning courses, an exam score of 80% is needed to pass and receive credit for the course.

The only instance where a licensee is responsible for submitting the course completion information is for classroom courses taken outside of South Dakota. These courses do not get reported to the SDREC office by the course sponsor.

Another frequent question by brokers and broker associates is whether a particular course is approved as a Required or Elective class.

SDAR 20:69:11:01 and 20:69:11:02 define what topics are acceptable for continuing education and which of those topics are considered as Required subject areas. These subjects include: Real estate contracts, real estate license law, fair housing, ethics, environmental issues, antitrust, the American with Disabilities Act and brokerage services.

Hurricane Katrina No Excuse for Seller’s Failure to Transfer Property

ALQ Real Estate Intelligence Report

A home seller who agreed to a purchase agreement on Aug. 22, 2005 – with the close set for a month later on Sept. 26 – has been told he must go through with the sale, even though Hurricane Katrina ripped through his house during the intervening period.

The case was Wesley and Gwendolyn Payne vs. Keefe Hurwitz (No. 2007 CA 0081, first Cir., La. App. 2008). The appeals court essentially told Hurwitz he could not profit from the “fortuitous events” of the hurricane that resulted in his property being substantially upgraded with repairs.

According to court records, Hurwitz agreed to sell his home in Madisonville, La., to the Paynes for $241,500. The contract contained a provision that said if an inspection turned up a need for repairs, the closing date could be delayed for another 60 days to make them.

The purchase agreement was signed a week before Katrina hit the Louisiana coast on Aug. 29. Hurwitz’s home sustained substantial roof damage from hurricane winds and a fallen tree, as well as water damage to the sheetrock, windows, and other interior fixtures.

The costs of repair were estimated by Hurwitz – a self-employed contractor with experience as an insurance adjuster – at approximately $60,000.

Although the Paynes fled to Kansas City during the storm, they tried repeatedly to contact Hurwitz about the wellbeing of the property. On Sept. 20, Hurwitz acknowledged the attempts through an e-mail to the lender’s title company that stated: “Per our conversation today, I was blunt that the house was in need of major repair due to storm damage. It will take months to get this work completed. I will not be interested in selling for the same amount when and if I decide to sell my house.

“Naturally the house goes up in value each day … I understand that Katrina was an inconvenience to everyone. I’m sorry at this time I cannot afford to sell my house under the previous terms and conditions or the present status of my house and my life at this time.”

The Paynes promptly sued Hurwitz for specific performance of the contract.

The trial court found in favor of the Paynes, but ruled only that their $1,000 security deposit must be returned along with another $1,000 in fees.

The Paynes appealed, saying Hurwitz was required to go through with the sale. The appeals court agreed, saying the Paynes were entitled to more than a security deposit.

The court said that under the contract Hurwitz was required to bring the house up to at least its previous condition and he could not take advantage of the fact that once it was rebuilt – and paid for by insurance money – that it would be worth considerably more than the purchase agreement stated.

Agent Has Duty to Disclose Home Might Be Mobile Home

Waddles v. LaCour, 950 So.2d 937 (2007)

Court of Appeal of Louisiana

Facts: Pruitt and Posey co-listed a home for LaCours. Waddles became interested in the home and entered into a dual agency agreement and a contract to purchase the home. After moving in, Waddles discovered the home was a mobile home. Waddles sued, alleging the agents misrepresented the home as custom built and failed to disclose that it was in fact a mobile home. Posey admitted she had received phone calls informing her that the home was a mobile home but that she had questioned the LaCours, who told her there had been a mobile home there at one time but that it was gone. The buyer hired an inspector who found the home was a combination of site-built and mobile home. The Lacours filed for bankruptcy and were dismissed from the case as a result. The trial court found the agents had a duty to disclose the phone calls they received so that Waddles could investigate or negotiate further if necessary. The court reduced the purchase price of the home by 25% and awarded $10,000 in damages, 2/3 the fault of Posey and 1/3 Pruitt. Posey and her insurance company appealed.

Issue: Whether Posey had a duty to disclose the content of the phone calls to Waddles.

Held: Posey did have a duty to disclose the information to Waddles, her client. The award of $10,000.00 for mental anguish was not abusively high. The court observed that in this case there were three calls informing Mrs. Posey that the home for sale used to be a mobile home. As an agent for Mr. Waddles also, this issue could have been so that Mr. Waddles could decide what action to take. Even if the LaCours failed to disclose the information, at least Ms. Posey would have fulfilled her obligation to Mr. Waddles.

USPAP Q & A

Vol. 9, No. 12, December 2007
Changing the Scope of Work after the Report has been Submitted

Question: Sometimes after submitting my appraisal report, my client will ask me to perform additional work. This can mean looking at more or different comparables or developing another approach. Do these requests for additional work create a new assignment?

Errors of Commission and Omission

Question: A reviewer recently told me that my residential appraisal did not comply with USPAP because of “errors of omission and commission” and cited Standards Rule 1(b). What is the difference between these errors?

Making a Series of Errors

Question: A reviewer told me that my real property appraisal did not comply with USPAP because I made several minor calculation and analytical errors. Does USPAP address this issue?

Vol. 10, No. 1, January 2008

Geographic Competency in Appraisal Reviews

Question: I have a client who has asked me to perform a desk review on a property located in a different state. I have no knowledge of the real estate market in that state and have never even stepped foot there. Can I perform a USPAP-compliant appraisal review on this property?

Appraisal Without Knowing Sale Price

Question: I have been asked to perform an appraisal for a home that I know is under contract. No lender is involved and the buyer and seller do not want the appraiser to know the amount of the sales contract. Can I accept this assignment and still comply with USPAP?

Due Process Under Confidentiality

Question: I received a request from my state attorney general’s office to turn over some appraisal reports I had prepared. Can I comply with this simple request or must it be in the form of a subpoena?

Answers to the above questions can be found at: www.appraisalfoundation.org.
