HOST AGENCIES

As a host agency, your organization can expand its workforce while providing training opportunities for SCSEP participants.

Host agencies are vital to the success of SCSEP. DLR can provide 501(c)(3) nonprofits or government agencies with SCSEP participants who are eager to update their skill sets by helping with your organization's day-to-day tasks. Participants receive this short-term work experience training at no cost to you. Participants' wages are paid under a federal grant run through DLR.

Additionally, DLR works with you to ensure the participant is a good match for your position. Employers approve participant assignments.

Counties covered under SCSEP may vary each year. Go to dlr.sd.gov/scsep and select Coverage Areas from the left menu.

While participants work for their host agencies, DLR case managers monitor the participants to ensure training is successful. Case managers also provide specialized skill training to further enhance participant skills.
